CONFERENCE CONTENT:

The Many Faces of Dementia: It's Not All Alzheimer's Disease is a one-day conference designed to bring together health care professionals, clinical researchers, residential care facility and community agency administrators, and providers in the greater Los Angeles area, who provide care for persons with Alzheimer's disease and other dementias. This year's conference will focus on non-Alzheimer's dementias. The morning session will include speakers discussing the presentations, course, and treatment approaches for the major dementias: fronto-temporal dementia, Lewy body dementia, vascular dementia, and early onset familial Alzheimer's disease. The afternoon will include a presentation on advances in diagnostic imaging in the differential diagnoses of dementia; a facilitated panel presentation of individuals with dementia and their care partners; and a presentation regarding community-based resources and support for families.

Our focus on healthcare providers who have frontline contact with dementia patients comes from an appreciation that most older individuals receive a majority of their health care from primary care providers. It is important that primary care providers and other health professionals who come into contact with older adults in the community are familiar with Alzheimer's Disease as well as the other common dementias: fronto-temporal dementias, Lewy body dementia, vascular dementia, and early onset familial Alzheimer's disease. Providers need to have an understanding of the differences in the dementias, know how to diagnose and manage dementia, are able to provide accurate information to patient and families, and can do so in a culturally competent way. Only then, can we reduce the gaps in health care access, performance and outcomes.
