

Searching for Caregivers in Los Angeles

whose loved one has Alzheimer's

LLCP is searching for people who care for their loved one with Alzheimer's, and are willing to share their stories and memories.

Scientists from a renowned scent research company have partnered with a Leading Fragrance Brand and are studying the connection of scent in sparking memories for patients of Alzheimer's and Dementia. If you would be willing to share your story, memories, and try this experience, please contact us.

Please note this is not a treatment or disease solution

This will be a video filmed documentary style and the final product will be a commercial used in all media for 1 year. There is compensation for the family used in the final product.

Looking for families in Southern California.
No actors please. We are looking for real stories.

E-mail Reality@lizlewis.com for more information before March 9th.
