

Emily Nabors, MSG

Emily Nabors, Program Manager of the Fall Prevention Center of Excellence at the University of Southern California Leonard Davis School of Gerontology, is an expert in educating service providers and professionals on fall prevention with a focus on home modification and aging in place strategies. Emily's extensive experience in fall prevention and home modification coalition development resonates in her instruction of a course on building local home modification coalitions and increasing community awareness and her presentations at national, state, and local professional conferences. She is a member of the Steering Committee of Stopfalls California – the statewide fall prevention network, a founding member of the National Home Safety and Home Modification Work Group and conducts research on home modification with NCOA's National Falls Prevention Resource Center. She has a Master of Science degree in Gerontology from the University of Southern California Leonard Davis School of Gerontology and an undergraduate degree in Studio Art from Vassar College.